Wetherspoon It's looking like Shudder subscribers in the United States will soon be able to enjoy a stay at one of England's most famous pubs, The J.D. Wetherspoon chain, which offers cheap beer, seasonal soup and sandwiches, and bargain children's meals. According to the Telegraph, the J.D. Wetherspoon chain, which boasts around 2,500 pubs in England and Northern Ireland, is set to launch a streaming service called Wetherspoon Live late next month. The service will feature over 80,000 hours of live video content, including on-demand and live streams of live music and events. The deal was done with major streaming service Netflix, which already has a streaming deal with the chain. The agreement will see Netflix pay for all marketing for the service, and give it full editorial rights, according to a statement from the company. Wetherspoon's Vial-based digital marketing agency will also provide a similar amount of money, and currently handle the social media, content and digital marketing strategy for the Wetherspoon chain. The company also states that Wetherspoon Live will be a one-stop shop for fans of the chain, with the entire schedule of when and where events are happening. In an attempt to broaden the Wetherspoon brand, the chain's expanding its UK footprint to an additional 40 outlets by 2021. This is the latest in a rapidly growing trend of major alcohol brands launching their own digital streaming services in
